THE SOUTH WHEELING HOMICTUR

THE SOUTH WHEELING HOMOUDE.

The most intense excitement prevailed in the southern portion of the city on Saturday evening (about 7 o'clock over the report that a man had been murdered on 30th street. In a very short time an immense crowd of people assembled at the scene of the homicide, eager to learn the details of the crime. Investigation proved that the rumor was too true. Richard Hennegan had been killed in a gifarrel with Tom Welsh, his brother-in-law.

Hennegen and Welsh have never been friends since the former married the latter's sister, about six months since. Both men were boilers and worked in the Belmont Mill, and on Sattrday afternoon after they were paid off they went to the house of Wm. Truax, who is a brother-in-law of Welsh, where they had a lew words. After leaving Truax's house they were seen walking together on the Baltimora & Ohio railroad track, near 30th street, shortly before 7 o'clock. As they walked, Wel-h was seen to strike Hennegen and knock him down, and kick him after he was down, after which he ran down to the river bank. The parties we had observed them ran to the assistance of Henter was already dying, and lived river bank. The parties whe had observed them ran to the assistance of Hennegen, who was already dying, and lived but a few seconds. Death had evidently ensued from a fracture of the vertebrae of the neck and injury to the base of the brain, thought to be the result of a heavy kick administered by Welsh while Hengern was down.

egen was down. The body was taken to the residence negen was down.

The body was taken to the residence of decased, back of Chapline street and below 27th, where Justice Schultz aummioned a jury and held an inquest. The jury was composed of the following gentlemen: John $\frac{1}{2}$ Cooper, Miles Burke, Thomas P. Burke, D. H. Brockett, Henry Piper, James Ferrell, Pat. Donahoe, F. Dobbs, Theodore Koltz, Charles Adams, John Auber and Jasper Cline. The testimony before the jury, which was in accordance with the facts given above, was not concluded until about 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ clock, when a verdict was returned to the effect that deceased had come to his death by blows inflicted by Thomas Welsh.

After leaving Hennegen, Welsh ran down to the river, as already stated, and getting into a skiff was pulled to the other side, by a young man named Richard McCornick. He remained on the Ohio shore near Whisky Run until his found wanting either in peace or war. There is is no Belshazar about him. Republicans have no reason to be ashamed of Hayes—they will carry him through. He has already vanquished three Democratic aspirants for the Presidency, and is now waiting for the fourth. He only wants to know who the Great Unknown of St. Louis is to be, when he will use him up as he did Pendleton, Thurman and Old Bill Allen. The speaker then alluded to the present Democratic Congress and the reform promised but not forthcoming. The action of Congress in putting such men into prominent positions as Fitzhugh and Hamlin, whom they choose to reward because they are true and thorough Democrats, was severely crissised. This is the party that whines about reform, whose only claim to public confidence is that they have not committed the follies and crimes that they have had no opportunity for. Mr. Caldwell thought West Virginia could be carried for the Republicans. He expressed the hope that the Centennial year will be made famous as the year that will bring about the user defeat, disintegration and burial of the Democratic party, and trusted that each and every man would resolve to vote the Republican ticket at least once every four years for the next one hundred years.

delay secured a skill and started in purd suit of Welsh, in company with several citizens.

Hennegen was twenty-seven years of age, and a rather small man, whife Welsh, who is about the same age, is at least six feet in height and powerfully built, weighing probably 165 pounds. He has a dark complexion, with eyes and hair of the same color, and wears a small black mustache. He had on a blue shirt when last seen. Welsh is an unmarried man, and his victim, as already noted, had a wife but no children.

Officer Baum and five companions spent. Saturday night in searching the woods over the river for Welsh, but without success. He had not been arrested up to a late hour last night. A report was chrrent our the street, however, that he had given himself up at Bellaire. The rumor is generally discredied, and it is thought that Welsh is in the vicinity of Warnock's Station, where he formerly lived.

REPUBLICAN RATIFICATION MEETING.

A rousing Republican ratification meeting was held in the Court House Saturday night. The large court room was filled to overflowing, and the enthusiasm of the crowd was something which angured well for the success of the Union. Hayes record in the Artificial Republican ticket in November next. The mere mention of the names of the nominees of the Cincinnati Convention was greeted with an outburst of applause which fairly shook the building, and brought to mind the exciting political contests of war times. All present appeared not only entirely satisfied with the result of the three days session of the Convention, but defermined to support the nominees. Everything was harmonious, the friends of other candidates for the nomination uniting with the Hayes men in showing, their appreciation of the successful candidates. Kramer's brass band was present, and entertained the large audience with some excellent music previous to the meeting.

ent, and enterflained the large audience with some excellent music previous to the meeting. Mr. John Oesterling, of the Fourth Ward, was called to the chair, and Mr. Geo. P. Linch selected as Seceretary.

It was suggested that a Committee on Resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting, and a motion to this effect was put and carried. The following gentlemen were named as the committee Mesers. John R. Hubbard, T. J. Hugus, I. H. Williams, Wm. Hastings and Major M. B. C. Wright.

The committee having retires for consultation, Mr. Geo. B. Caldwell was loudly called for, and coming forward made a briss but spirited speech. Mr. Caldwell thought that the Republican party had no easy conflict before them, and this fast should be sufficient to make them active and warm in the work upon which they are about to enter. It was the same old flag that had been flung to the breeze—"tore was no South, no North, no East no West—but the flag of all the people, and all were injusted to follow it to victory. One of the watchwords of the Republicans in this fight is free schools, where rich and poor can unite together and enjoy the rights of American freeman. Another is public meetly—keeping faith with the public credit. The Republican party is in favor of all people paying their honest debts. The plant in the platform, however, is reform in the civil service, which holds public officials to rigid responsibility. No matter if it be Balcock, or a Democrat, punishment shall come from the Republican party swift and sure. The Gincinnati Convention had nominated a gallant soldier, who had been tried in the balance and not found wanting either in peace or war. There is is no Edshazzar about him. Re-

Ohio county, do most heartily-endorse the nominations and platform of the Cincinnati Convention.

Resolved, That in Rutherford B. Hayes we recognize a pure statesman, a patriotic soldier, a practical civil service reformer, an incorruptible Christian gentleman, a man emineffly qualified gracefully and faithfully to discharge the high and onerous duties of the President of the United States.

Resolved, That in William A. Wheeler we recognize a man of large legislative experience, with a clear, sound and discriminating mind, and eminently worthy of the position for which he has been nominated, and whose character is, in every respect, unimpeachable, and who has the universal esteem of all who know him.

Resolved, That, as the State of West Virginia has always given her electoral vote for a Republican President, we will work carnestly, faithfully and hopefully until the setting of the sun on the 14th day of November next to carry the State for Hayes and Wheeler, and that we here pledge ourselves to maintain her proud record as a Republican State.

pledge ourselves to maintain her proud record as a Republican State. = Resolved, That we recommend the im-mediate formation of a battallion of Hayes Guards, and that a committee of one from each ward be appointed to further the

Mr. John R. Hubbard then rolled up his gleeves and delivered an earnest and spirited address. He said that he was fresh from the fight at Cincinnati. His banner was up, and on it was inscribed in large letters, Hayes, Wheeler and Victory! He went to Cincinnati not as a delegate, but simply as a man, and did what he could for Bristow. He took up the battle cry for Hayes because he represented the pure sentiment that should be carried out in this country. All felt that all the candidates were worthy—the only question was as to who would give the degree of strength that would, enable us to go forth and wio. All agreed that man was Rutaerfard B. Hayes. In public and private life, everywhere, he has been pre-eminent. Mr. Hubbard spoke of the eloquence of the speakers who made the nomination at Cincinnati, and thought that some of the speeckes made would be recited by school-boys for one hundred years to come.

The meeting then adjourned, after adopting as a battle cry for the eampaign, as suggested by Dr. Logan, "West Virginia for Hayes and Wheeler!"

It is understood that a second meeting pointment of the committee called for in the resolution will be submitted by the President, after having advised with the County Executive Committee. design. Mr. John R. Hubbard then rolled up four years.

Dr. Logan, who was a delegate to Cincinnati, was next called for. The Doctor spoke of the number of distinguished candidates for the Cincinnati nomination, and said that at no previous convention were so many names presented, or was it so difficult for a delegate to discharge his duty. He then alluded to Blaine, of Mains, the great parliamentarian and brilliant leader; to Conkling, of New York, who as a statesman has but few equals in the land, the pride of his own State, and justly regarded with pride by Republicans all over the country; to the war Governor of Indiana, a man of brains and a man of power, a maw of conscientious convictions; to the man from the home of Henry Clay, B. H. Bristow, of Kentucky, of-younger growth but fulled vigor; to the man from our neighboring State, who made a brilliant record as a soldier, and has since shown himself as capable of defeating rebels on the battefield, RutherfordB. Hayes, of Ohio, the next President of the United States. With such names before the convention succeeded in presenting a ticket which all can united and which will result in victory in November next. CONSECRATION OF THE NEW CATHOLIC CENTERLY.—The consecration of the new Catholic Cemetery on the National road, four miles east of the city, which has been twice postponed, fook place yesterday afternoon. Four special trains, carrying nearly three thousand people, left the city between 2 and 3 o'clock r. M., while hundreds went out in carriages and on foot. The crowd in attendance was variously estimated at from 3,000 to 5,000. The day was bright and beautiful, and just cool enough to be pleasant.

The different Catholic Societies, accompanied by Kramer's full brass brand, went out on the first train at 2 o'clock. A temporary bridge had been erected over the creek opposite the cemerated over the creek opposite the cemerated.

o'clock. A temporary bridge had been erected over the creek opposite the cemetery, and upon arriving there the Societies formed in line and marched to the city of the dead. There was considerable delay at the grounds, fully an hour clapsing before the Bishop and attendants appeared. The Societies having marched into the cemetery, formed two lines in the following order, the end just inside the gate:

St. Alphonens Society St. Patriek's Society Ancient Order of Hiber

Ancient Order of Ribermana.
Finally Bishop Kain and attene came out of the Sexton's house and marched through the lines followed by the band playing a dirge. First came two acol yites, bearing large wax candles; next the cross-bearer, and following were Fathers Sgilivan, Kreusch, Beyer, McMennamin, Collins and Reynolds. Bishop with the control of t

Kain came next, carrying his crosier and wearing his mitre and official robes.
Krauser's band brought up the rear.
The Bishop and attendants having marched through the lines ascended a small platform on one side of the grounds, and the societies marched up and took their places around them. The Bishop then announced that a collection would be taken up for the benefit of the Whelan Memorial Chapel fund, which being done hie proceeded with his sermon. The following is a brief synopsitof his semarks:
The blessing of the burial places in the Catholic Church dates back to the apostole times, and even to the Jewish dispensation, where we find Tobias most callously securing the bodies of his brethren in order, we may reasonably presume, that they may have the form of interment which was customary among his people.
When the glorious proto-martyr St.
Stephen was mourned by the first Christians we see the, great solicitude with which his remains were secured, the pomp with which they were consigned to their last resting place, no doubt specially dedicated for the burial of the faithful.
Again we have still in the catacombs grand monuments of the care with which the early Christians interred their fellowChristians, whether martyrs or the faithful generally, in places specially prethe early Christians interred their fellow Christians, whether martyrs or the faith-ful generally, in places specially pre-pared and blessed. The same solicitude is now shown by the church in the rites and blessings with which she consecrates the resting place of the bodies of her chil-dren.

the resting place of the sources of the charden.

I. The ceremonies are replete with significance, and well worthy of the study of Christian men. The crosses placed at four sides of the cemetery, and one in the centre represents the universal dominion of death on the one hand—the cross reminds us of the Savior's death—on the other hand the victory over death—by the cross Jesus Christ triumphed over death. The prayers are expressive of this, and also convey many other beautiful and most instructive lessons. That most soleum form of prayer—the Litany of the Saints—is said on bended knees, and reminds the people of the victory over death, and that the cemetery is but the sleeping place of the remains of the faithful till the general awakering.

2. The resting place of the faithful are blessed. First, because of the dignity of the Numan body—in its origin the noblest work of the Creator in the material order. So great and grand is it, that whilst the Creator in the material order. So great and grand is it, the whilst the Creator in the material order. So great and grand is it, the whilst the Creator in the material order. So great and grand is it, the whilst the Creator in the material order is of the human body—in the order of the faithful the numan body by a special act not merely by His word. The dignity of the body appears in its 'wonderful perfection and adaptability to the purpose intended by the Creator.

2. Because of the dignity of the Christian body. With the soul, it was sancting the various sacraments, but most of all in the Holy Eucharist, which in adults so often purpled the lips and tongue of the Christian and reposed upon the leart even as the beloved disciple's head reposed on the Savior's bosom. The Christian's body in Hife shared with the soul in good works, and that to such extent that it looked as if those bodies hurried on the soul to deed of virture rather dren.

soul in good works, and that to such ex-tent that it looked as if those bodies hurried on the soul to deeds of virtue rather than war, impelled by the soul. Hence St. Paul tells Christians of the dignity of their bodies, calling them temples of God, and threatens severest penaltic even of destruction, against such as vio late these temples of God. 2. Because of the belief in the resur-raction and future life. The years rection and future life. The very nan given to burial places—cemetery—de-rived from the Greek word, means a place of repose or sleep, a dormitory, indicat-ing that the bodies are not always to remain there, but to awake from that sleep or repose. Our Lord con-veyed the same idea when He said of the reyed the same idea when He said of the person who was dead that she slept, and so also of Lazarus. Hence the cemetery is a bed of repose—a reliquary in which those sacred bodies are for the while encased, one day united to the same to be entry placed around the very throne of the great and Holy God in the abode of His infinite bliss. They are therefore worthy of our respect, the place is justly a consecrated spot, and not without deep significance termed God's own portion in special manner though the minimum to the special manner through the minimum through

At the conclusion of the sermon, which was not of great length, the Bishop per-formed the ceremony of blessing the cem-etery, as explained in his remarks.

Babes Applicat—Two small children were sitting in a skiff near the Belmont mill on Saturday, when it became loosened from its fastenings and floated out into the river. The mothers of the little ones were for a time nearly wild with anxiety. The boat was forced nearly across the river by the wind, but as the children kept their places they were soon rescued by men who went after them in a skiff. A Night or two since a well known citizen of Centre Wheeling was awakened from slumbers by his wife, who said there were burglars in the house. The gentleman arose, and, accompanied by the entire family, armed with all sorts of weapons, prowled all over the establishment, and found—a cat: Only this and nothing more.
